Dr. Billy Stewart Named College's 8th President

Dr. Billy W. Stewart, Vice President for Administration and Finance at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College, was unanimously selected ECCC's eighth president at the Board of Trustees meeting in March.

Dr. Stewart, MGCCC's Administrator of the Year for 2011-12, said he looks forward to taking East Central Community College to even greater levels of excellence. He begins his new duties on July 1, 2012.

"I am excited about working with the ECCC family and building upon the foundation as set forth by Dr. Phil Sutphin, Dr. Eddie M. Smith and the other former presidents," Dr. Stewart said.

Dr. Stewart, 43, succeeds Dr. Phil A. Sutphin, who earlier announced plans to retire on June 30, 2012, following 12 years of service leading the two-year institution.

Prior to joining the MGCCC staff, Dr. Stewart served as Dean of Copiah-Lincoln Community College's Simpson County Center in Mendenhall and earlier served as Dean of Community Services at Co-Lin in Wesson.

Dr. Stewart's education experience also includes the secondary education level. He served as assistant principal at Pearl High School and began his employment at the school as a social studies instructor.

Prior to joining the PHS staff, Dr. Stewart served as Alumni Field Representative for the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

Dr. Stewart is a graduate of USM, where he received a bachelor's degree in history/teacher education in 1990 and earned a master's degree in curriculum and instruction/history in 1993. He was selected Mr. University of Southern Mississippi and is a member of the USM Hall of Fame.

He completed a doctorate in school administration with emphasis in Higher Education/Community College Administration from Mississippi State University in Starkville in 1997.

Dr. Stewart and his wife, Stephanie, have four school-age children - Stephen, Will, Elizabeth and Emily.

'Notes' from the Wall O' Sound Band

by Thomas W. Carson, Director of Bands

Swamp People, Ax Men, Pawn Stars, Top Shot, Top Gear. What do these TV shows have in common with the Wall O' Sound band? Nothing.....they are all just cool shows!!!

Now, back to the important stuff: ECCC Band news! Most of you have returned your scholarships. Tryouts for Drum Major, Color Guard, Drumline and Centralettes have taken place and we are ready to move ahead with the mega marching machine, known as the Wall O' Sound Band!

As I wrap up the final weeks of my 30th year as Director of Bands, this will also be my final band article as I am retiring. Most area seniors know I am engaged in the biggest "Halftime Show" of my life; since August 18, this year's show theme has been "the Alien War" as I continue to wage a fierce battle with esophageal cancer. It is time to step down, and focus all my efforts into this war I know I will win!!!!

As you plan your summer vacations and begin to earn your millions with various summer jobs, my assistant Ed Girling, together with the new Director of Bands, Hunter Corhern, will be busy all summer preparing for the onslaught of the best band students in the world: The 2012 Wall O' Sound!!! The band hall will be a flurry of activity as the two directors and my student workers Tyler Yates and Chandler Smith, will ready "all things band" in great anticipation and excitement for the most important opening event on EC's campus: Band Camp!

After presenting an "out of this world" SPACE show in the fall, the excitement mounts as we wait to find out what Hunter Corhern will present as the theme for the 2012 marching show!!! I look forward to seeing my beloved Wall O' Sound under new leadership and attending the home games as a spectator.....after 34 years pacing the sideline during shows, this new experience for me will be really different.

While I fought my war, Mr. Girling and all of our band groups stayed very busy this spring with various concerts, trips and band-related activities. The Concert Band, Jazz Band and Percussion Ensemble did a super job for their March spring band concert, as the Centralettes, under the direction of Nichol Hillman, tore up the basketball courts with their high-energy dances.

ECCC's in-house rock band, The Collegians, concluded an abbreviated spring schedule (due to my medical leave) preparing for our Spring Concert that featured a Collegians Alumni band, as well many former Collegians who joined us on stage for my final traditional closer, "Old Time Rock and Roll." Many prospective students have asked me about the future of The Collegians as I am retiring. I assure everyone, The Collegians will return stronger than ever this fall; just take my word for it.

Our traditional final "Fairwell" concert for the 2011-12 members will be our concert at the Neshoba County Fair on Monday, July 30. Show times is 1 p.m. at Founder's Square.

As I retire June 30, I have nothing but wonderful, cherished memories of my time here. I have many children of former students as band members so it is very rewarding and humbling to have two generations of students in my band program. This band program has been my "baby" and I have really been blessed to see it develop and become a very impressive program. I owe its success to my awesome band students as they are the parts of the machine that work together. I just cranked the key and watched it run; I will miss the interaction with the students.

If you are a band horn line senior and have not signed your scholarship, it is not too late to do so. All members receive a minimum of full tuition scholarships, so take advantage of this financial help, using your talents to help you pay for your college education.

You may contact me (until June 30) at tcarson@eccc.edu, or my assistant Mr. Girling at egirling@eccc.edu or call the band office at 877-462-3222 or locally at 601-635-6228.

Thanks to all my band students, past and present; it has been an awesome ride.

Community College vs. University

by Nicole Bounds, ECCC SBA President 2011-12

When graduating high school, deciding on a college is a difficult decision for most seniors. Before many decide exactly what college, they usually try to make the decision between going straight to a university or to a community college first.

When I was in high school I wanted to immediately go to Ole Miss after I graduated. Then senior year, I began taking a few classes at East Central. I fell in love with the college and the people. I then decided that I would first come to East Central before going to Ole Miss. I still to this day think that that was the best decision I could have made.

Being from Newton County, many people from my high school always said they never wanted to come to EC because they would be with the same people we graduated with. Other people don't want to attend a community college because they feel like there is never anything to do. When you get to a community college like EC, you see that that is not actually the case.

Going to a community college first helps you get better prepared for a university. You learn on a college level but you are in a much smaller and friendlier environment that makes the whole college experience a lot easier. At a community college your teacher knows you by name, not a number. Also, attending a community college gives you a chance to make great friendships. Some of the greatest people I have met have been because of East Central. Meeting these people gives you lifelong friendships, and the people you meet could very well be going to the same university as you later, making the university experience better. Some of the people you meet at a community college could even end up being your roommates at a university.

Community colleges also give you more of a chance to get involved. At East Central, I am involved in many clubs and organizations and am even the president of the student body. I would have never even thought about running for president at a big university, and I probably would not be nearly as involved. There are fewer people at a community college so more opportunities for each individual, including sports, clubs, offices, and things like homecoming court.

Another huge advantage of community colleges is that the college may help you decide on a major before going to a university. Many people still have not decided what they want to do in life when they graduate. Attending a small college where you can get more one on one help makes this huge decision much easier. Community colleges just simply help you grow as an individual, giving you the opportunity to meet new people, get involved, and learn in an easier learning environment.

ECCC Culinary Course Offers Various Career Options

Love to cook? Is baking a favorite past time? Ever wonder how a restaurant makes that special sauce? Perhaps your future includes a career in culinary arts! East Central Community College in Decatur began offering a degree in Culinary Arts in 2007 and more recently moved into a new kitchen on the South Campus. Alexei Huguley has served as instructor since the program began.

"We offer a two-year Associate of Applied Science degree and there is a one-year certificate program without the general education requirements (core academics)," Huguley said.

Part-time courses are not typically offered due to most of the courses requiring prerequisites, but part-time is a possibility based on the student's skill level and instructor approval.

Upon completion of the program, Huguley said students are prepared for jobs as prep cooks, line cooks, sous chefs and kitchen supervisors. "Basically anywhere there is a kitchen they should be able to go in above entry level," Huguley said. "Some choose to focus on catering or baking instead."

Students may also obtain certification through the American Culinary Federation, which offers national certification after the student has completed a degree and worked in the field an appropriate time.

Among courses offered are Culinary Principles I and II, Principles of Baking, Garde Manger, International Cuisine, American Regional Cuisine, Food and Beverage Cost

Control, Dining Room Management and a host of managerial courses to learn how to manage and operate a kitchen and its employees.

Huguley said, "Students also learn skills in sanitation and safety in the kitchen, knife skills, meat fabrication, flavors and flavorings, baking, vegetable and starch prep, pasta, sauces, plating, etc."

In addition to class lectures, Huguley said 90 percent of class time is spent cooking."

"We prepare all local ingredients that are available to us but focus on classic French technique. Typically, we also have several times a semester that we have an opportunity to cater projects on campus."

In addition, students enrolled in the program cater for the general public when school is in session. They also offer cakes, casseroles and other items for purchase.

"Anyone can call or e-mail me for prices, said Huguley. "We can pretty much prepare anything needed and any quantity."

Huguley said the new kitchen on South Campus has been a wonderful addition. "The students love all the extra space and organization. Now we would like to add a smoker and a steamer when possible."

For more information on the Culinary Arts program, contact Huguley at 601-635-6252 or by e-mail at ahuguley@eccc.edu. Prospective students may also contact ECCC Career-Technical counselor Amanda Walton at 601-635-6214 or by e-mail at awalton@eccc.edu.
