

Professional Licensure Disclosure

Some degree programs at East Central Community College (ECCC) are designed to be terminal while others are designed for transfer. A terminal degree (typically an Associate's in Applied Science degree) is customarily for students who are looking to enter the workforce once they graduate from ECCC. A transfer degree (typically an Associate's in Arts degree) is customarily for students who plan to continue their studies by transferring their credits to a four-year college or university. At this time, no determinations have been made as to whether these programs lead to licensure in all states.

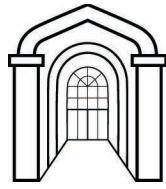

Terminal Degree Programs

Earning a degree from ECCC in any of these programs prepares the student to become licensed to work in Mississippi; however, there may be additional requirements if the student wishes to work outside of Mississippi. While ECCC attempts to identify and notify any student for which this may occur, please contact the respective licensing board in that state to determine whether the ECCC program will meet its educational requirements for licensure if you are considering one of these programs and plan to apply for licensure outside of Mississippi.

If you have questions regarding any program that is not listed below, please email stateauthorization@eccc.edu.

Please click on the link for each program to find out if licensure in Mississippi meets other states requirements.

Transfer Degree Programs

Below is a list of transfer degree programs of study offered at East Central. Although no licensure is required upon earning one of these degrees from ECCC, some of the professions associated with these fields of study can ultimately require licensure once the student has earned a higher-level degree at the institution to which s/he has transferred. Provided with this list are links to the professional licensing boards that regulate some of those professions. If you have questions regarding any program that is not listed below, please email stateauthorization@eccc.edu.
